Cause of the Accident The recent accident on the Kearsurge was without precedent in the American or any other navy so far as known. A cablegram from Rear Admiral Ecane, commanding the Atlantic fle, from Calmanera, Caba, torecasts the probable finding of the court of liquing which is now in progress to see crain the carse of the explosion and fix the responsibility. He says that the accident was probably caused by fused metal from an electric switch, which was short circuited by acciden al contract with a shell extract r during the operation of withdrawing a charge from a gun after the completion of target practice. This extractor is eight feet long and is never kept in the turret, but is passed in from above only when needed to draw a charge. So it is regarded as one of the most singular accidents in naval records, but still one impossible in the very latest type of battleships, owing to the improvement in electrical appliances in the last few Waylaid by Negroes.

One man was fatally and another seriously shot by three negroes who waylaid them in Los Angeles, Cal., Tuesday night. Faro Amato and Luke Sebella, both Italians, were the victims, Amato will die. The two Italians had been making a call at the house of some friends in Sacramento street. Leaving the house the men proceeded down the street, and when at the corner of Enterprise and Wilson streets three negroes stepped from behind a growth of large castor beans and commenced firing at the Italians with pistols. Amato fell to the pavement at the first fire and S-bella ran. After firing six shots the negroes took to their heels and disappeared in the darkness. The shooting is believed to be the result of a recent race war between negroes and Italians in the colony in the neighborhood of where the shooting occurred.
